

Rx Community: Social Prescribing in Canada

Building a Movement Based on a Model of Health and Well-being

Kate Mulligan, PhD; Jennifer Rayner, PhD; Sonia Hsiung, B.Eng., MTSD; Sara Bhatti, MPH; Marcus Wong, MScPH Candidate

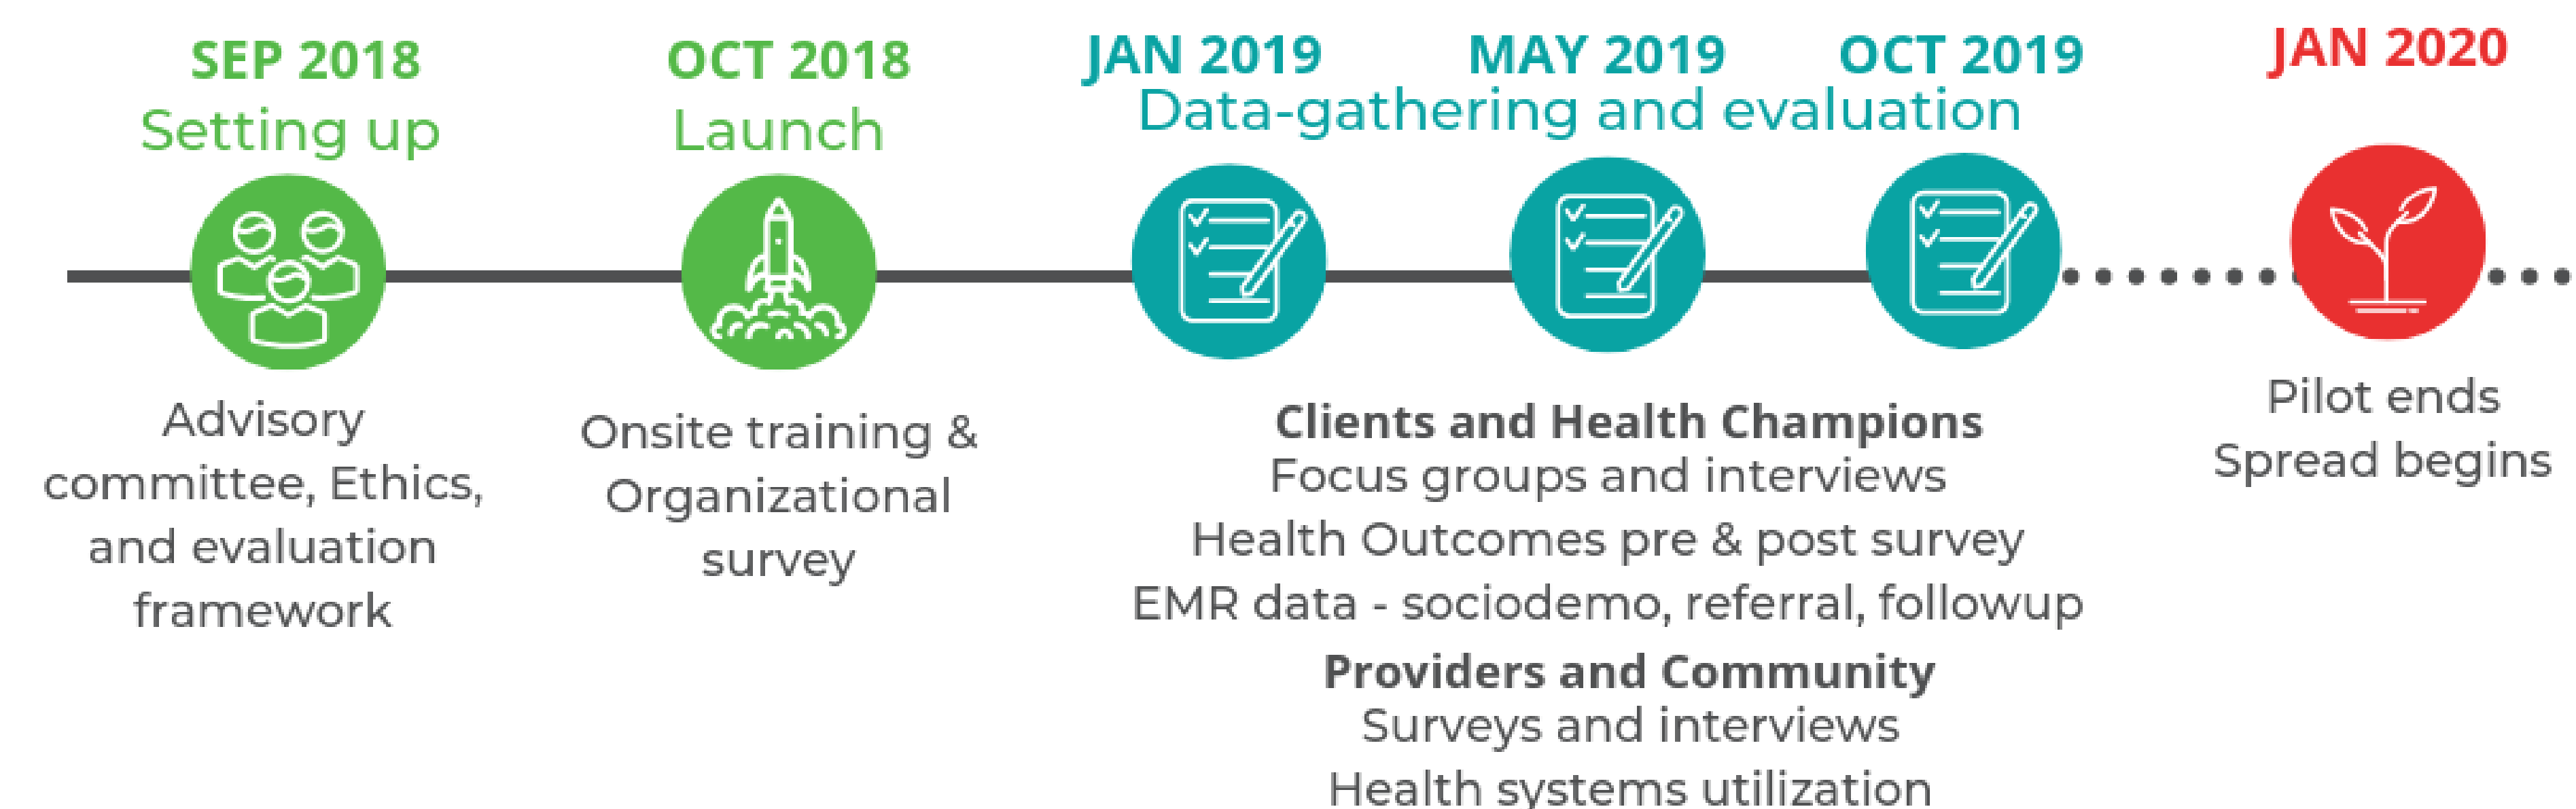

METHODS: EQUITABLE & DIVERSE

Implemented in Community Health Centres – comprehensive primary health care organizations that are:

- Informed by the Model of Health and Wellbeing (MHWB)
- Committed to health equity and social justice
- Focused on marginalized and vulnerable populations
- Grounded in community development and empowerment
- Co-located primary care, allied health, health promotion, social work, and community outreach services

AIM: ADAPTIVE & BUILT-IN EVALUATION

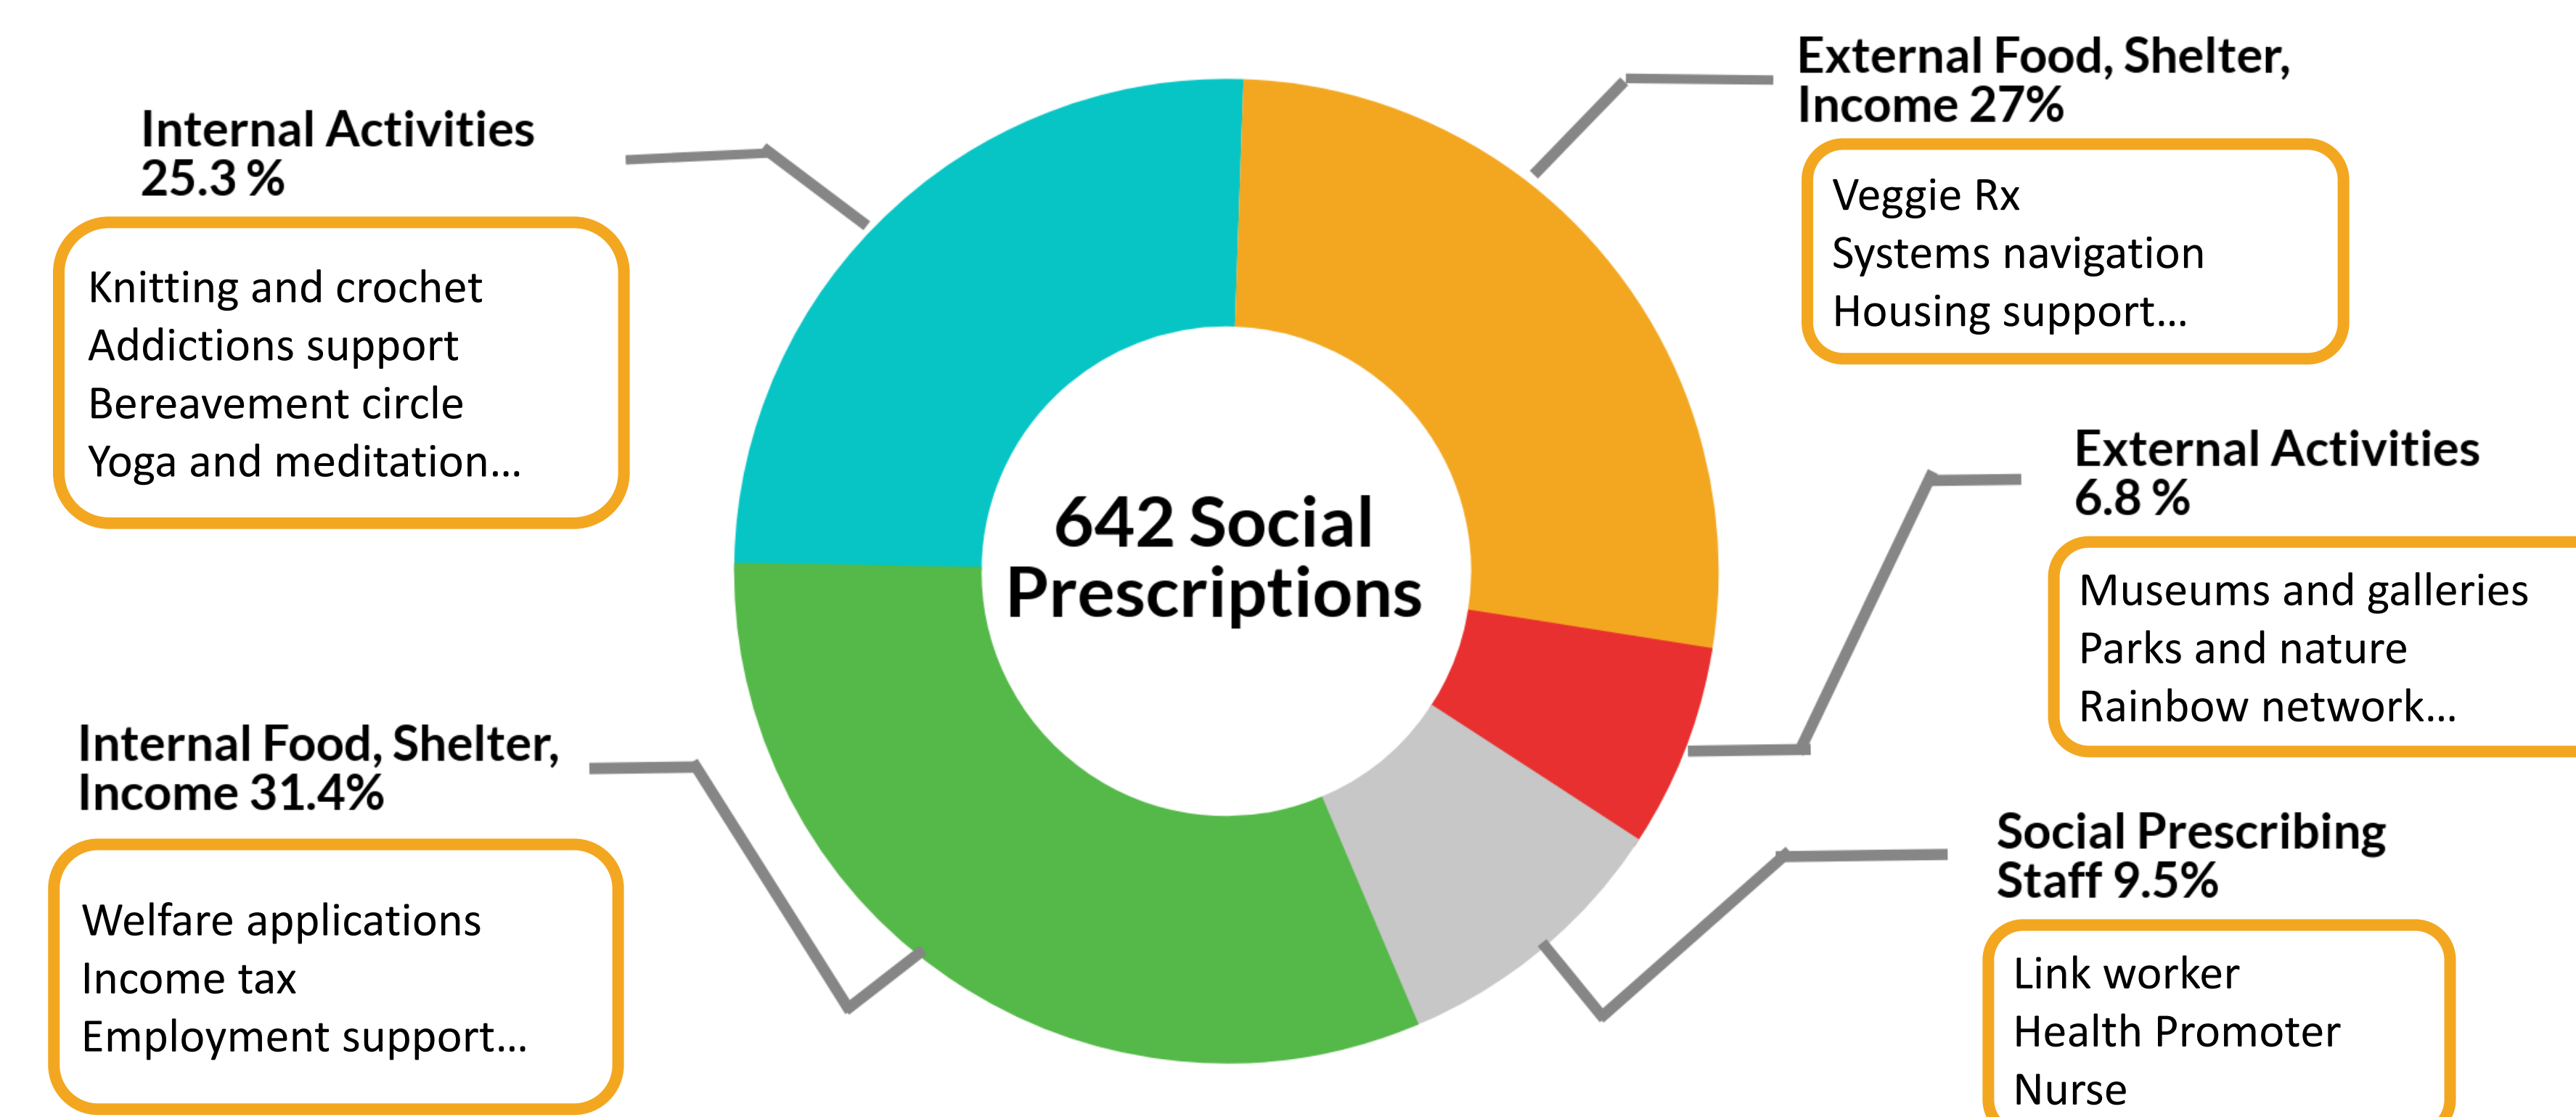

Ongoing evaluation and communities of practice fuel iterative improvements. We are strengthening the evidence on what works, with whom, and in what circumstances.

Evaluation was built into the design, leveraging existing assets:

- Common Electronic Medical Records system
- Socio-demographic data
- Shared measurement and outcomes framework
